Article Admissibility Requirements

For the article to be considered by the journal, the authors must clearly demonstrate its relevance and originality in comparison to the existing specialised scientific literature on the topic. This should be presented in a document attached to the submission, summarised in three sentences. The authors may highlight aspects such as the research theme, theoretical framework, use of a specific database, sample construction, or a methodological approach involving suitable statistical or econometric tools.

For econometric studies, with replication in mind, the authors commit to providing the database used, along with any supplementary files necessary to reproduce the results.

Finally, the authors should acknowledge the limitations of their analysis (e.g., data availability, estimation techniques) that may restrict its applicability to other contexts (political, geographical, etc.) and consider potential extensions of their study.

Proofs

The proofs will be submitted to the author for layout verification; author corrections are not allowed on the proofs.

Publication

Sauf en cas de refus explicite de l'auteur, les articles seront mis en ligne sur le site : www.cairn.info > Revue d'économie du développement.
